Food intake during school hours has a significant effect on the quality of life of children and adolescents. To determine if adolescents who did not eat school meals felt more significant negative effects on their quality of life than adolescents who ate at school. It is a cross-sectional, descriptive, and analytical study. The sample consisted of 219 adolescents in 3rd, 4th, and 5th grades from public schools of the city of Curitiba. A questionnaire composed of socio-demographic variables, the instrument of the International Physical Activity Questionnaire (IPAQ), and the Food Frequency Questionnaire (FFQ) for the assessment of food intake during school hours were applied. The Food Intake During School Hours Questionnaire (FISQ) was used to measure the effects of food intake during school hours on the quality of life of adolescents. The differences were calculated by the chi-squared test and the associations were tested using multiple logistic regression. The FISQ domains with the greatest negative impact on quality of life were: "food intake during school hours is harmful for health (Q1) and feels guilty eating the food provided by the school (Q2)." The influence of each domain on the QoL dimensions was different in each grade. Male adolescents and adolescents who ate less frequently had more negative impacts on quality of
