Hints for newbie: There are a lot of images about the game and you can play a long time, before you get lost. One important tip: 1. Each time you start a new game, you can choose a level in which your next game will start. If you want to have a fair competition you can choose the hardest level you can or start a second timer, so you can come back again and try again later. You can also change your city dimensions later. (start with the standard size). 2. You can use your savegame to play on another level later. (level is a folder) 3. You can choose auto play for (4) or anything else, if you are a newbie and don't know how to choose level. 4. You can push the down-arrow to change some parameters (time-levels) next to the timer. 5. You can choose other background-movies, if you can't find "Animages 1". 6. You can change the music, if you are a newbie, because there are some tracks I don't like. 7. You can use level skip to go back to the last level in some situations. 8. You can hide the game information in the menu. 9. You can play on a new level from the beginning, if you just want to try the game and don't want to loose too much time. 10. You can start a game with more than one city and make a level per city. 11. You can disable the cutscene in the options. 12. You can disable the robots and robots-squad. 13. You can disable "realistic" missiles, because of some real weapons. 14. You can add new bots and/or buildings. 15. You can disable the fly-eye. 16. You can disable the building moving on the map. 17. You can disable the menu. 18. You can disable the lasers in the air. 19. You can disable the flying objects. 20. You can disable the radar. 21. You can disable the air-defense. 22. You can disable the auto-upgrading (level) 23. ## What's new in Spooky:

- Ride Review 6th August, 2018 TAKE: For as much as I loved the 03 Royal Enfield Clubman sidecar I couldn't get a job in America for it as it's a crude and brutal engine so had to move on. I was however looking for a sidecar that's more robust and more UKy with nice round indicator lights. The TT Isle of Man exercise is a mad dash ride every year on the public highways of the Island. I watched the Isle of Man TT races in my youth and this fantastic sidecar is produced in the Isle of Man. It's a one off, there never will be others like it. It's a short, silver and hard to spot beast that's very much an understated and unassuming little number really. Being a full factory 2012 it's a virgin of mechanical engagements and colour change of ducky blue to the current passport black. With its smooth lines, pretty indicator lights and racy purple decals...they shouldn't look so mean but I have a feeling they're up to something. 6021cc 2 stroke triple motor 5848cc 3 stroke single churning engine Custom ex-AJS Trans-Lux Hand built €13,995 Sidecar Thrill- Rides The best part of this beast is the resonating bottom end of its twin clutch bearing and the sheer squeal that tingles your part through the leather seat of the otherwise quite comfortable step through. With this combination however, you don't feel a boggy engine or a geriatric gearbox as the seamless, syncopated pulse into the front wheel creates something approaching energetic sidecar racing. Review by John Staiano. TT Isle of Man - Sidecar Sidecar Thrill-Rides If you manage to win a TT-style race, you use a start/restart system where you are straddled over the front wheel by your passenger and a starter motor beeps to get you going, therefore you are technically not driving, when on the power see other cars speed by you as they are flagged at the side of the road, you should then hold on, and outmanoeuvre them all to finish first. Behind the Starter Motor Come on in my man, the old isle of man is calling
