Greetings, my name is Forest, I am a fledgling wizard who has come to this world for a simple reason: to help other wizards and witches. Why am I here? I'm here to help, of course! But it seems that other wizards are just as reckless with their powers as I am, leaving me to clean up their mess. Thankfully, I can also teach my fellow wizards a thing or two about fighting off hordes of dangerous monsters and their deadly guardians. But I also know that all of my skills and knowledge won't last forever, as I can't fight forever. But I have the distinct honor of knowing who will be the next most important wizard to look after when I depart. I was born in the town of Westbury, and I never knew my father. I think he was killed by a dragon, but I'm not sure. I also knew my mother, whose name was Clover, as well as her town of Countryside. But I lost both of them along with everyone else I knew in a worldwide dragon attack. But I still have faith. I know that one day I will eventually have a son, and he will be the next most important wizard in the world. And if I don't live to see that day, he will. But until then, I have to stay alive, and I have a few tricks up my sleeves that are sure to help me do so. I also have a few friends who helped me build

In the world of Spellbound you are a man who lost his son and, after an accident, is trying to cope with his memories. For you, having memories of your son means finding proof that he still exists, but this is not easy. Your memories are limited to fragments of experiences and whenever you open your eyes, it is always the beginning of a new episode. When the narrative and memories start slipping from your grasp, you will have to find a way to get to the end. Spellbound is a VR game that brings you stories through dreams, as you are searching for truth and to save the soul of a missing man. The title tells us that this is a dream, but the player cannot believe it. Is this a dream or reality? This is the question at the heart of the story of this game. In Spellbound, we open the doors to find puzzles that involve perception and memory to find the truth, which can be catastrophic. You will have to deal with your memories and your dreams from the point of view of the story and its characters. The game offers a huge variety of puzzles, that you will have to confront in your quest to move to the end. When you achieve the truth, you will be able to choose to leave or continue and open the doors of Hell to face the Furies. DREAMS AND MEMORIES In Spellbound, you will have to confront your memories from the point of view of the narrative and its characters. The game offers a large variety of puzzles, that you will have to confront in your quest to move to the end. When you achieve the truth, you will be able to choose to leave or continue and open the doors of Hell to face the Furies. The theme of this game is dreams, in the sense that, during the narrative and in your dreams, it will offer you puzzles that will have to confront you, from the point of view of the story and the different characters. The game uses a classic presentation style, with a heavy use of shadows and graphics. Despite the game not having all the features of modern games, it has been translated to work properly in VR. The player can use a laser pointer to direct his point of view in the game and enjoy the atmosphere as if they were "playing" in a cinema. SPELLBOUND - THE NARRATIVE One day you receive a phone call from a man who tells you that your son has disappeared and that he DeRozan's the league MVP At least until the Jazz snap the Grizzlies out of the first round. He's arguably the most underrated basketball player of all time, especially considering the hell he's been through the past few years, starting at 25 and playing a million games in five years, when he can still be a 27-year-old rookie. He's been just that good this year, averaging a double-double (21.5 points and 8.9 rebounds) and dishing out 6.7 assists per game, while ranking 10th in the league in scoring and fifth in rebounding. And if the Clippers are going to have any chance of dethroning the Clippers, he'll need to keep up his fantastic play. How he gets the nod from the "
