This application was designed to help you select the correct macro for your keyboard. What is a MACRO: A macro is simply a text shortcut. A lot of people use the same short cut repeatedly on a keyboard. For example, if you have to enter a long password frequently, a special key sequence might be the best choice. KEYMACRO has an internal table of key-macro pairs so you can quickly scan through a list of key shortcuts and click on the one you want to use. KEYMACRO Description: Keyboard macros allow you to store a keyboard shortcut for a frequently used command in the Keyboard Shortcut Manager. For example, you might want to create a shortcut for a command that downloads and installs updates on a computer. Each time the command is used, the shortcut is automatically assigned to the keyboard and the command can be launched in one easy step. IP Country Lookup License Key Full

IP Country Lookup was designed to make it easy for anyone to perform a quick country lookup of an IP address or hostname. The program displays results in a table or a network map. This program is based on a database containing the current state of every country in the world. If the user changes the location of the IP database file it will be automatically reloaded when the application is restarted. The IP database file is based on a dynamically created database. IP Country Lookup will display all countries regardless of their geographic size. This way you will always see all available countries with a simple click. For those countries without a GPS position, the program uses the additional information available in the IP database to assign a geographic location to them. The geographic location is assigned according to the following criteria: - A country is assigned a position in the case there is a list of cities - If an area is given as a country, it is determined if it is inside a larger country - The closest city or town is assigned if there is no country given as an area - No area is given and the first city is assigned if there is only one city listed. In addition to the countries and cities of the database, IP Country Lookup also displays all the known networks that are assigned to a specific country. The graphical display for the databases has been designed to be easy to read. An icon will appear in the lower right corner of the table or on the network map of an IP address. This icon indicates that the selected country or network is assigned to the IP address or hostname it was selected from. This icon can be clicked to view the data or be used as a fast shortcut to do the lookup. The program works on most popular operating systems including Windows XP, Windows 2000, Windows Vista and Windows 7. ICS-PPP/PPP: Because a country can be assigned to multiple different networks, the program can also display the different routes a specific country provides. This is done with the following options: - IP list: Shows the different networks that are assigned to a specific country - Country list: Shows all the countries that are assigned to a specific network WebHostingManager is a WebHosting Control Panel for Windows. It is aimed at the typical users who need just the basic things like the Web Hosting Manager, Web Files Manager and Email/FTP manager and no other extra features like the Modules,

IP Country Lookup is a free DNS utility for Windows that lets you lookup the country an IP address or hostname originates from. It uses a locally installed file containing a list of networks and associated countries to quickly determine the geographic source of an address. IP Country lookup is provided entirely free and is not a trial or crippled version of the application. Determing the source country of an IP has many possible uses including analyzing network logs for malicious activity, detecting online fraud, tuning spam filter configurations or simply finding out where in the world a server is located.Q: Android thread execution order I'm new to threads and decided to have a go at it. To test my thread, I have the following. public class MainActivity extends Activity { @Override protected void onCreate(Bundle savedInstanceState) { super.onCreate(savedInstanceState); setContentView(R.layout.activity_main); Thread task = new Thread() { public void run() { try { SystemClock.sleep(1000); } catch (InterruptedException e) { e.printStackTrace(); } publishProgress(100); publishProgress(50); publishProgress(0); } }; task.start(); } And from the MainActivity, I have a progressDialog. @Override protected void onCreate(Bundle savedInstanceState) { super.onCreate(savedInstanceState); setContentView(R.layout.activity_main); new MyProgressDialog(this).show(); } The problem I'm facing is that the progressDialog starts when the mainThread is starting to execute the run method. So my questions are. Is this the way to do this? When is the progressDialog being shown and can I control this? Can I stop the run method from executing after a certain number of steps? A: Yes, this is the way to do this. I would call setContentView in a onStart() method of your Activity, not onCreate(). If you don't, it will fire up the onCreate() method before
