Advanced Driver Updater is a software application with a pretty self-explanatory name - it allows you to update your system drivers. It can be easily figured out by users, regardless of their level of experience. The interface of the program is clean and pretty intuitive. Upon initialization, Advanced Driver Updater automatically displays a list of all drives which need updates, so you don't have to manually perform a scanning procedure. You can check out specific details for each of them, such as the driver name, version, age and status. Updating an item can be seamlessly done, by clicking a button. Furthermore, you can opt for Advanced Driver Updater to update all drives, create an ignore list, as well as backup and restore data. From the Settings tab you can alter the default locations for the downloaded drivers and backup copies, schedule a one-time only or recurring task, switch to a different language for the interface, set the action on the close button, as well as make Advanced Driver Updater automatically run at system startup. The program runs on a moderate quantity of CPU and system memory, has a good response time and includes user documentation. No error dialogs have been shown during our evaluation and Advanced Driver Updater did not hang or crash. Thanks to its intuitive layout and overall simplicity, less experienced users can quickly learn how to deal with this tool.

Hepatocyte growth factor-activated Na^+ -dependent Ca^{2+} entry is associated with activation of protein kinase C in primary cultured mouse pancreatic acinar cells. We studied the involvement of protein kinase C (PKC) in hepatocyte growth factor (HGF)-stimulated Ca^{2+} entry in primary cultured mouse pancreatic acinar cells using a fluorescent Ca^{2+} indicator (Oregon Green BAPTA-1 AM) and total PKC activity assay. Extracellular application of HGF induced transient rise in intracellular Ca^{2+} concentration ($[\text{Ca}^{2+}]_i$), which was accompanied by increase in total PKC activity. The rise in $[\text{Ca}^{2+}]_i$ induced by HGF was associated with significant increase in the Ca^{2+} -independent Ca^{2+} influx and the Ca^{2+} -dependent Ca^{2+} efflux. Pretreatment with PKC inhibitors prevented the rise in $[\text{Ca}^{2+}]_i$ and blocked the increase in both Ca^{2+} influx and efflux, but had no significant effect on the changes in Ca^{2+} influx in response to Advanced Driver Updater updates device drivers and driver components that are not automatically updated by Windows. It supports almost all versions of Windows, from Windows 2000/XP to Windows 7/8. It discovers all needed device drivers, device components and Windows updates. All configured drivers are updated in addition to the ones selected in your system settings. For this reason, Advanced Driver Updater significantly reduces the time required for a system update. It runs on all Windows system editions, including 32-bit and 64-bit versions. All drivers that will be updated by Advanced Driver Updater have a status of "critical". This means that your system can be unstable.
