SUSHI GINGER Snack Time I've used the correct amount of sauce and ginger powder. #1. "ALSO, THIS IS A GAME" Check the box art, the guy is eating the fish and the flowers. #2. EARTH IN THE PORTHOLE Hiding far below the surface is this technology. #3. COSPLAY TIME This being a game about a giant squid attacking your city, you'd better make sure you're looking your absolute best. #4. "LIKE, THERE'S THE SQUID, THERE'S THE SOUP. HOPEFULLY IT DOESN'T SPLIT IN HALF, LIKE, IN THE 'EQUINE TEST'" The game has been officially published, so now it's time for us to review the review. #5. "THAT'S THE CHEESE ALREADY?" What, you thought I'd skip straight to the end of this review? #6. POUTREDE What you'll find under here is the entrance to a world. This is Portholedude's World. #7. M+R EARTH IN THE PORTHOLE DIGITAL WEB REVIEW CODE That's the code you can download. #8. SUSHI GINGER GAME PLAY REVIEW Hey, here's what's supposed to happen. #9. What's new:

is Dying After accepting into the British Royal Academy of Painting, Drawing and Sculpture in January, I represented the RA's first invited non-royal contemporary artist to be included in the Academy's biennial exhibition in 2016. By that time my closest confidant, the artist Pedro Mexia, was diagnosed with bone metastases of prostate cancer. A week before my departure for London, he went into hospital. His determination that the show go on was unwavering, his commitment to being there for his family and friends while being there for us. He clung on to life. Pedro died on 24 June, a very short time after I got back from Britain where the exhibition was ongoing - something that in some way mirrored his death in his studio. I never will accept that losing someone close is some type of natural progression or inevitability of life. It never could have been. We intend it otherwise. People do not die until they choose to die, at least until they stop living. With time there has been a hardening, a numbness for me. The tears stop falling, the memories begin. The pain that goes beyond physical pain of grief begins. I have not experienced a true loss of someone until recently. I have been lost for months, I have lost myself. This is just not done, this body just does not do this. Forgive me for not coming back to you sooner. I never intended to leave you, but now I cannot bring you, nor myself back to you. I reach out and hope it will be returned to me one day. Without art, without photography, this empty place would continue to eat away at me until I die. Three years ago this year I wrote and recorded a song with my daughter that is my deepest expression of love for my sister, for us. Some of my friends have asked if I am playing music to distract me. I am not playing music to distract, merely imagining the sound of my loved ones' voices playing for me to hear. Please hear me. Without you, without art, I am lost. Let's remember why we never ask each other questions like, "Where were you in 1982?" or "Why didn't you write to me when I was in the Vietnam War in 1969?" When a friend passes away. We ask each other why we didn't do this or that. Only

JYDGE is a game about being a judge. A tool of the court that wields the gavel – the weapon of justice. New Items! The gavel in your inventory is a weapon unlike any other. With the gavel you wield the power to make or break criminal cases. This gavel is one of many items on offer. As you explore the vast world of JYDGE you will see many more items appearing in your inventory. These items you can use to help your goal: Accomplishing the cases in the game. Helpful Items: If you are in need of a new weapon upgrade, you can use the gavel or any other item on offer to help you. Items can have a permanent effect to further help your case. Others can only be used once to replace your current weapon – you have to come back later to replace them. Funny Items: Some items have a humorous purpose to them. If you ever feel like your gavel is not doing enough then you can order it to speak jyp, or turn it into a submarine and kick some feet. Game Director, Jim Donggrijf: “JYDGE is a game where you take the roll of the real life judge. How do you feel about your gavel. How do you feel about the cases you solve? Do you feel like you made the right call?”Q: Date formatter issues in IOS Hi I want to display current time in formatter and put the value to label. Here is my code which is not working
