ALOX5AP methylation is associated with gene expression in colorectal cancer. To investigate the methylation status of ALOX5AP in colorectal cancer (CRC) and its prognostic value, we used bisulfite pyrosequencing (BSP) to determine the status of ALOX5AP methylation in CRC tissues and their adjacent non-tumor tissues, and compared the methylation of ALOX5AP with gene expression in the same set of CRC tissues.

ALOX5AP methylation was increased in CRC tissues than non-tumor tissues and demonstrated a positive correlation with ALOX5AP expression in CRC tissues. Methylation status of ALOX5AP was associated with tumor stage, lymph node metastasis, tumor differentiation and other clinicopathologic features. Survival analysis revealed that ALOX5AP methylation was an independent prognostic marker for overall survival in CRC patients. Our results suggest that ALOX5AP may be a potential target for diagnosis, treatment and prognosis of CRC patients.

Q: how to replace # with variable? can i have a variable take the place of the # in this statement? var replacement = '#12345'; the # in the variable represents a # of course, but i need it so that the $205 can be changed. i want to change $205 to #12345 str = str.replace(/#$/g,replacement); A: You have to escape the #, because it is a special character in regex str = str.replace(/##/g,replacement);

EDIT: I think you are missing something here, the string needs to be encoded with " for it to work. var replacement = ""; //Now do: var replacement = "#12345"; var str = "my string"; str = str.replace(/#$/g,replacement); Also, take a look at MDN
